Appendix A Amalgamated solid geology types

Broad categories of solid geological types are derived from an amalgamation of the following detailed solid geological types.

Limestone

- o Argillaceous Limestone
- o Dolomitised Limestone And Dolomite
- o Limestone
- Mudstone And Limestone
- o Oolitic Limestone

Sandstone

- o Conglomerate And Sandstone
- o Micaceous Sandstone
- o Mudstone
- o Mudstone And Sandstone
- o Sandstone
- o Sandstone And Argillaceous Rocks
- Sandstone And Conglomerate

Miscellaneous siltstones and mudstones

- o Breccia
- o Siltstone
- o Siltstone And Mudstone
- Silty Mudstone
- o Undivided Cyclic Sedimentary Rocks

Appendix B Forest Enterprise historic environment management categories

Gloucestershire County Council Archaeology Service have prepared this management categories document to assist Forest Enterprise in the management of the historic environment on their land within the Forest of Dean, Gloucestershire. This will:-

- Provide Forest Enterprise with current data about archaeological and historical sites, monuments and structures in a form which can be up-dated and integrated into their forestry forward planning.
- Provide Forest Enterprise with basic management advice for some categories of archaeological or historical sites.
- Notify Forest Enterprise where it is appropriate to seek additional advice on the management of archaeological or historical sites.
- Assist Forest Enterprise in the management of the historic environment in their care.

The management categories are a refinement of those formulated in Archaeological Sites on Forestry Commission Land in the Forest of Dean, Isaac, J., 1991. They cover archaeological sites and areas, historic buildings and other structures of archaeological or historical interest.

Four management categories have been identified (A to D) and are listed and described below along with a recommended course of action in the event of them being affected by forestry operations.

B.i Management Categories

Category A:-

Sites, buildings and structures of national importance and their settings: generally with statutory protection - scheduled ancient monuments and listed buildings, or wider areas which contain these elements.

In general, the national importance of these sites is reflected in the protection afforded them by legislation. Archaeological sites are protected as Scheduled Ancient Monuments under the Ancient Monuments and Archaeological Areas Act (1979). Listed Buildings (Buildings of Special Architectural and Historic Interest) are protected under Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990. Initial contact for information and advice on Scheduled Ancient Monuments should be English Heritage who act as advisors to the Department of Culture, Media and Sport. Initial contact for information and advice on Listed Buildings should be the Conservation Officer of the Forest of Dean District Council. Where buildings are listed either Grade I or II* English Heritage should also be consulted. Where necessary District Council Conservation staff are able to arrange a joint meeting with English Heritage.

Scheduled Monument Consent will need to be obtained in advance of any management operations affecting Scheduled Ancient Monuments. Listed Building Consent may be required for works which affect any statutory listed building or structure (or non-listed buildings within their curtilage).

This category may include some other archaeological sites, buildings or structures of national importance that may not have statutory protection. These will include:-

- Surface evidence of undated iron ore extraction (scowles).
- Some sections of the monument recorded as Offa's Dyke, most of which is scheduled.
- Historic buildings or structures in isolated locations which may meet the criteria for statutory listing, but which have been missed in the review of listed buildings carried out by central government.

There is a presumption against any forestry operations, such as earth moving, clearfelling or new planting, which would damage archaeological sites, buildings or structures in this category.

Scheduled Ancient Monuments

Recommended Action: Consult English Heritage and the County Archaeologist. Adhere to the archaeological management plan

This recommendation indicates that no management operations should be undertaken without prior consultation with English Heritage and the County Archaeologist, and the site should be managed in accordance with the specifications of the archaeological management plan.

Listed buildings and structures:

Recommended action: Consult the District Conservation Officer and the County Archaeologist

This recommendation indicates that no management operations should be undertaken without prior consultation with the District Council Conservation Officer and the County Archaeologist.

Archaeological sites, buildings or structures in this category without statutory protection

Recommended action: Consult the County Archaeologist and/or the District Conservation Officer if buildings are present

This recommendation indicates that no management operations should be undertaken without prior consultation with the County Archaeologist, or, in the case of buildings, the District Conservation Officer.

N.B. For all categories of site, the County Archaeologist and the District Council Conservation Officer will be responsible for ensuring good communication between their departments where interests overlap.

Category B:

Sites and structures of regional and local importance

Archaeological sites, buildings or structures in this category are not currently considered to be of national importance, but may be characteristic of the local area and be primary evidence for the archaeology and history of the Forest of Dean. Given the work currently being carried out by English Heritage (Monuments Protection Programme) to increase the numbers and range of representation of sites with statutory protection, some of the sites in this category may eventually receive statutory protection.

This category will include archaeological sites, buildings or structures in the following categories:-

- The pre-industrial revolution iron or coal industries. This will include all structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites associated with any aspect of the pre-industrial revolution iron or coal industries (with the exception of scowles – see above).
- The prehistoric period. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other evidence of sites dating to the prehistoric period, and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains from this period.

- The Roman period. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites dating to the Roman period, and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains from this period.
- The medieval period. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites dating to the medieval period, and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains from this period.
- Pre-20th century communication routes. This will include surface evidence of pre-20th century communication routes.
- Post-medieval industrial complexes. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites forming part of post-medieval industrial complexes and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains.
- Historic buildings or structures in isolated locations which may meet the criteria for statutory listing, but which have been missed in the review of listed buildings carried out by central government.

There is a presumption that areas in this category should be maintained in a stable condition, and protected from potentially damaging operations, although it is recognised that this may not be appropriate in all cases. Some sites in this category may warrant more detailed management statements to inform future management operations.

Recommended action: Consult County Archaeologist or District Conservation Officer & maintain site in a stable condition

This recommendation indicates that sites in this category should be retained in a stable condition unless additional management recommendations indicate otherwise, and that no management operations in these areas should be undertaken without prior consultation with the County Archaeologist, or, in the case of buildings, the District Conservation Officer.

Category C

Other archaeological sites and structures

Sites in this category collectively contribute to the historic landscape of the Forest of Dean. Although they have an intrinsic importance, they are individually less significant and are currently thought unlikely to contain archaeologically significant deposits.

This category will include the following:-

- Undated or post-medieval stone quarries.
- Undated or post-medieval mineshafts.
- Undated or post-medieval lime kilns
- Undated or post-medieval wells.
- Undated or post-medieval charcoal burning platforms.
- Other undated or post-medieval features associated with pre 20th century woodland management (e.g. 19th century Crown Enclosure banks, undated sawpits).
- Undated or post-medieval marker stones.
- Undated sites of unknown origin known only from aerial photographic evidence.
- Probable sites of pre-20th century communication routes where no surface evidence remains.

Recommended action: Maintain features in their present form

This recommendation indicates that forestry operations should be carried out with regard to retaining these features in their present form.

Category D

Sites and structures of undetermined significance

This category consists of sites of undetermined significance, although it should be recognised that these sites have the potential to yield significant archaeological information.

This category will include the following:-

- Isolated findspots of archaeological material.
- Areas in which archaeological material has been recovered (generally as surface finds), although the precise location or spread of this material is not known.
- Documented sites of any period that cannot be located precisely.
- Place names which may indicate the site of archaeological features.
- Areas of modern archaeological survey and assessment.

As these areas are of undetermined archaeological significance, no restriction on forestry operations can be applied.

Recommended action: Notify the County Archaeologist if archaeological finds or features are found

This recommendation indicates that the County Archaeologist should be notified in the event of structures, deposits or artefacts being encountered in these areas as a result of any management operations.

Areas with no recognised archaeological or historical features

It should be recognised that any inventory of archaeological sites can only be an interim statement reflecting the state of knowledge at the time the information is produced.

Areas between known archaeological sites should not be regarded as archaeologically sterile, and the County Archaeologist should be notified in the event of any structures, deposits or artefacts being encountered as a result of any management operations regardless of whether these pertain to a recognised archaeological area. Where historic structures are encountered the County Archaeologist should be informed who will, where necessary, liase with the District Council's Conservation staff.

Where current information on known archaeological sites is of poor quality, these may have been accorded a higher or lower category than they deserve. Accordingly in the event of further information becoming available some areas may change categories.

B.ii Types of monument to be assigned to each category

The following is a list of the types of archaeological site or area which should be allocated to each management category. Whilst it is recognised that this list cannot be comprehensive, it will act as a general guide allowing appropriate allocation to be maintained in a standard way between a variety of site types.

Category A

- Scheduled Ancient Monuments
- Listed buildings
- Scowles

Category B

- · Complex industrial sites.
- The pre-industrial revolution iron or coal industries. This will include all structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites associated with any aspect of the pre-industrial revolution iron or coal industries (with the exception of scowles see above).
- The prehistoric period. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other evidence of sites dating to the prehistoric period, and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains from this period.
- The Roman period. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites dating to the Roman period, and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains from this period.
- The medieval period. This will include structural remains, earthworks or other significant evidence of sites dating to the medieval period, and sites with a strong likelihood of below ground remains from this period.
- Pre 20th century communication routes. This will include surface evidence of pre 20th century communication routes

Category C

- Undated or post-medieval stone quarries.
- Undated or post-medieval mine shafts.
- Undated or post-medieval wells.
- Undated or post-medieval charcoal burning platforms.
- Undated or post-medieval marker stones.
- Undated sites of unknown origin known only from APs.
- Probable sites of pre-C20 communication routes where no surface evidence remains.
- post-medieval limekilns.

Category D

- Isolated find spots.
- Areas in which archaeological material has been recovered (generally as surface finds), although the precise location or spread of this material is not known.
- Documented sites that cannot be located precisely.
- Place names.

B.iii Areas where more than one management category can apply

The following areas were identified where more that one management category was appropriate for different sections of the area.

Area no.	Area Description	Action

C.iv Sources not consulted, or not systematically searched

During the preparation of the project design it was anticipated that the following source should be consulted. Although these sources wee not consulted as part of Stage 1 of the project, the following assessment was made of their potential value.

Sources held at Forest Enterprise Offices in Coleford

Day to day estates atlas

This source indicated the present extent of FE land and incorporated cumulative information consisting of:-

- Annotated 1:2500 scale OS maps showing encroachment in 1904, and 1922.
- Annotated 1:10,000 scale OS maps showing encroachment in 1955, 1970 and the present.

The information has been amalgamated and put onto modern 1:2500 map sheets (copies reduced to 1:5000) held in book of 124 1km² sheets. It was considered that this type of data was of little value to Stage 1 of the project. This source was not consulted

Hosner maps of forest encroachment in the mid 19th century

The original Hosner maps show encroachments into the Forest at 1787, 1812, and post 1812 were compiled in 1834 to define the extent of Crown land at that time. Some written information on 19th century encroachment is also contained in handwritten ledgers.

This type of information was not considered to be of value for Stage 1 of the survey, and much of the information had been incorporated into the relevant rectified maps of the Forest of Dean in the 19th century compiled by Gwatkin (see above). It was thought that this source may be of some value for consultation in advance of future fieldwork in some areas, and copies of these maps are held by both Gloucester Record Office and the Dean Heritage Centre.

Sopwith's 1835 survey of coal and iron mines in Forest of Dean

This survey, commissioned by order of Her majesty's Commissioner of Woods Forest and Land Revenue and published in 1835 displays mines, mine shafts, kilns and numbered stones (presumably gale stones) and Forest Enclosures and occasional named buildings in the area of the Statutory Forest and its immediate surroundings

John Harvey, the Deputy Gaveller was of the opinion (and this was borne out by direct comparison) that the level of detail on these maps is generally less than on the 1st - 3rd OS. In addition to this, the information from these maps (with the exception of the numbered stones) had been incorporated into the relevant rectified maps of the Forest of Dean in the 19th century compiled by Gwatkin (see above).

This source was not consulted as part of the survey as it was thought that they would not be time-effective in terms of the additional information which they produced. It is recognised that, If further time were available, it would this source would warrant checking against the existing SMR record after all other sources had been consulted. A full set of these maps also held by the Dean Heritage Centre.

Maps of underground workings held by the Deputy Gaveller

This source consists of 147 tubes of mainly 19th century maps of mineral workings, showing both below ground and surface features on generally very large hand drawn maps. Not all tubes were opened when this source was assessed and some may contain more than one map. The maps are catalogued by placename in hand written index book, and the Deputy Gaveller is in the process of sending maps to Gloucestershire County Record Office.

The surface detail on these maps is considerably less than that shown on the 1st -3^{rd} Series OS maps, and this source is particularly difficult to access and are of variable scale and sizes. It was decided that this source was not likely to be cost-effective to consult as part of Stage 1 of the survey. The Deputy Gaveller is also in the process of a compiling map of mine shafts at scale 1:25000. This information is derived from the above maps, but is in a much more accessible format, although it is not clear when these maps will become available. In addition to this some maps are in the process of being transferred to Gloucestershire County Record Office, although this is an ongoing process and, at the time of writing (November 2004) it is not clear if this has been completed.

Sources held by the Dean Heritage Centre

Survey of railway and Tram road remains.

This unpublished survey was undertaken by Ian Standing, for Forest Enterprise, in 1993. Due to construction work at the Dean Heritage Centre, this source was in was in storage and not available for consultation when the source was assessed in 2003.

Although not seen it was felt that this source was unlikely to add anything to the data derived from 1st - 3rd Series Ordnance Survey maps and other published and unpublished sources either accessed by the survey project or already incorporated in the County SMR. This source was not consulted as part of the project, although it remains possible that it does contain some data of potential value.

Maps of industrial workings

The dean Heritage centre hold a number of maps of industrial workings (some from the 20th century), all of which were in storage, due to construction work at the Dean Heritage Centre, and were available for consultation when the source was assessed in 2003.

Although it was difficult to fully asses their potential value of this source, experience gathered in the course of the survey suggests that maps of this type, although invaluable for detailed study of individual sites, contain no more information of value to the general survey level of Stage 1 of the project than the $1^{st} - 3^{rd}$ Series Ordnance Survey maps which were consulted. Accordingly these sources were not consulted as part of the project, although it remains possible that they do contain some data of potential value to more detailed surveys or research into individual sites.

Photographs

The Dean Heritage centre holds a number of terrestrial photographs of industrial workings. Although it was difficult to fully assess their potential value of this source, it was considered unlikely that they contain information of value to the general survey level of Stage 1 of the project. Accordingly these sources were not consulted as part of the project, although it remains possible that they do contain some data of potential value to more detailed surveys or research into individual sites.

Index of free mines

The Dean Heritage centre also have a card index of the name of the mine and location of all mines in Forest. It was considered unlikely that this source contained information not available from other sources and was not consulted as part of Stage 1 of the project.

Sources held by the Gloucestershire Local Studies library

This collection holds a number of published and unpublished articles which were thought to be of value to Stage 1 of the survey.

The nature of these sources were assessed as part of the Stage 1 of the survey and no sources which were either not replicated in other collections or which contained information which was not found in other sources were identified.

Sources held by Gloucestershire County Record Office.

Gloucestershire County Records Office held a number of sources which were identified during the preparation of the project design but which were not accessed during Stage 1.

19th century and later maps of industrial workings

As with similar maps held by both the Deputy Gaveller and the Dean Heritage Centre, experience gathered in the course of the survey suggested that maps of this type, although invaluable for detailed study of individual sites, contain no more information of value to the general survey level of Stage 1 of the project than the $1^{\rm st}-3^{\rm rd}$ Series Ordnance Survey maps which were consulted. Accordingly these sources were not consulted as part of the project, although it remains possible that they do contain some data of potential value to more detailed surveys or research into individual sites.

Other unpublished maps

In addition to the maps of industrial workings, Gloucestershire County Record Office also hold a number of estate and other unpublished maps which pre-date the rectified 6" to 1 mile scale maps which were consulted by the project. A selection of these maps was consulted as part of the Stage 1 of the project (see C.iii above), although these tended to be maps which were readily available at Shire Hall, Gloucester.

It has been recognised that maps pre-dating the Ordnance Surveys of the 19th century are not objective records of the landscape and their main value to documentary research at the level undertaken for stage 1 of the survey is the provision of placename evidence which may point towards the sites of features of archaeological significance. Given the wealth of information gathered from the mid 19th century and later maps (see above), it was felt that the time spent accessing these maps would not warrant the limited (if any) additional data which would be collected. Accordingly these maps were not consulted as part of Stage 1 of the survey, although it remain possible that they would be sources of information for more detailed research of specific areas in the future.

Sources held by Gloucestershire County Council Archaeology Service

The project design identified that Gloucestershire County Council Archaeology Service held approximately 40 small unpublished reports (watching briefs, desk-based assessments) which may have contained information of value to the survey. Information form these sources was found to have already been inputted on the County Sites and Monuments Record, although a number of these were re-checked as part of the process of checking the existing Sites and Monuments Record database which formed a significant portion of the work undertaken as part of the Stage 1 of the survey

Appendix D Specifications for data collection from selected source works

D.i 19th Century Parish maps:

The following is a brief statement of how the Forest of Dean Archaeological Survey will integrate information from rectified copies of 19th century parish maps.

D.ii SMR checking by Parish

- These maps will be treated as a source work to be checked as part of the Parish by Parish SMR checking process. This source will be used in exactly the same way as the Raster 1st, 2nd and 3rd Series OS maps during this process.
- Where SMR data is taken from one of these maps the project copy of the map should be annotated in the following way:-
 - The area from which information has been taken should be outlined in red (this is merely to indicate that the information has already been assimilated into the SMR and need not exactly replicate the boundaries of the digitised SMR entry).
 - o Any field or place names taken from the map should be underlined in red.
 - The SMR number of the area should be written in the appropriate place on the map.

D.iii New data gathering by Parish

- As a parish based source, data from these maps will also be assimilated into the SMR as part of the Parish based work (i.e. at the same time as the VCH).
- This process will involve trawling the map for selected information and adding that information to the SMR.
- When information is added to the SMR it should be annotated on the project copy of the map to the same specification as in SMR checking by Parish/2 above.

D.iv Types of data to be taken from Parish maps

It is impossible to be fully comprehensive in outlining the full range of data which these maps may provide. The following should be regarded as an outline only

Boundaries

It is not the place of the Forest of Dean Survey to make a full record of historic field boundaries, or any assessment of earlier landscapes which may be indicated by these.

However, some boundaries may be recognisable (particularly in conjunction with certain field names) which can indicate sites which could be added to the SMR, and may survive as earthwork features.

The two categories in the Forest of Dean which spring to mind are:-

- Deer park boundaries these are likely to be curvilinear boundaries and are likely to be associated with Park place names Where these exist as mapped modern boundaries they should be marked on the Gloucestershire HLC maps and tagged E2 These boundaries cannot currently be highlighted on COGIS and so recourse to the original film overlays of this source (where the boundaries are coloured yellow) is recommended, although these should be seen as a guide only.
- 19th century woodland enclosure boundaries. These will only apply to areas currently managed by Forest Enterprise. Where these are recognisable as modern boundaries they should be marked on the Gloucestershire Historic Landscape Characterisation plots as C8 and coloured green on the film overlays. These should be used as a guide only.

 Lodges – The boundaries of the Forest lodges tend to be more clearly demarcated on the 19th century maps. Again the principal lodges are marked as an overlay to the HLC maps (Y1).

Evidence of industrial activity

Some industrial activity is marked on these maps particularly large quarries and also the location of selected industrial features such as limekilns (some place name evidence may also identify the sites of the things). As a general rule of thumb it would seem unlikely that these maps will be the only record of such features, but this may be the case, particularly where place name evidence suggests the site of former features of this type, which are not actually mapped as discrete features, e.g. a 15th century Forge may not be mapped on any other source but the 19th century map may have a "Forge field" in the right place. See also the discussion of dating evidence for quarries as a guide to how this sort of data can be used to suggest the date of otherwise undated features.

Landuse

The decision has been made to not record landuse from these maps as the routine part of SMR entry.

However, discretion can be used if it is felt that a change in landuse between that recorded on these sources and that recorded at some later (or earlier period) may be significant enough to warrant recording.

It is hard to cover all eventualities, but typically this would be used were a site, currently under woodland was not wooded in c.1840 (or vice versa).

Place names/Fieldnames

Place names/Fieldnames and their interpretation are the biggest mine-field in archaeology, but none the less, are useful indicators of the potential of some areas to be archaeologically significant sites.

No list of place names can be fully comprehensive and a degree of lateral thought is required to identify names which are related/the same but spelt differently due to dialect/pronunciation/spelling variables. A good trick is to say rather than read the word and see if it sounds familiar - Don't forget common letter/sound substitutions such as:-

- B/V/P
- Ch/C/K
- A/E/I/O/U/Y
- Qu/Cw
- C/S
- Th/T/D
- W/Ou/Gui/Gw/V
- Sh/Ss
- L/HI

How to digitise fieldname evidence

The following examples should be used as a guide to how digitise SMR information derived from field/place names:-

- If a field is known as "Barrow Field" and there is no other evidence to suggest the presence of an earthwork, the whole of the field should be digitised.
- If a locatable lime kiln is known to be in a field called "Limekiln field", the site of the limekiln should be digitised as a point feature and the fieldname recorded as a site within the same record.

- If the location of a furnace is approximately locatable to a certain part of a field called "Furnace Field" the approximate location of the furnace should be digitised as a circle in the normal way, and the field name recorded as a site within the same record.
- If the field adjacent to a locatable limekiln is known as "Limekiln field", it remains possible that this field indicates the site of a separate limekiln. Accordingly it should be separately digitised as a land parcel, assigned a separate SMR number, but cross referenced to the Limekiln SMR, and discussion of the relationship between the two features recorded in the area notes.
- Where a number of contiguous field names have related names e.g. "Great barrow field" and "Little barrow field", they can be digitised as one AREA, incorporating all land parcels, and each name given a separate SITE reference.
- Where a number of different potentially significant Fieldnames are within an archaeological area e.g. fieldnames "Barrow field", "The burrows" "Dragonsholm" within an area of prehistoric activity known from field-walking, they should be recorded as SITES within the existing AREA.
- If a field appears to be clearly named with reference to a known SMR record, but is not likely to indicate the site of a separate feature e.g. Court Meadow and Court Field adjacent to Longhope Court, they should not be separately recorded as SMR records, but these names should be marked on the project copy of the map as an unrecorded name (see below).
- An exception to the above is PARK and Park related names (see below) which should be separately recorded, although see also 5 above.
- Where a feature is recorded nowhere else but is labelled rather than named on the 19th century map e.g. "Cinders mound", The site type used should be that of the feature, but the Form should be CARTOGRAPHIC.
- As a rule of thumb, if an archaeological area already exists, and the fieldname may be interpreted as supporting evidence for this, (e.g. area of old mine workings in a field called "Rough Ground Field" you should err towards adding the name as a site even though you would not create a new SMR entry for the name if it was known only in isolation.
- Generally speaking, do not record fieldnames which simply indicate earlier landuse unless this is of some relevance to a site known from other sources. An exception to this is names which indicate the site of former vineyards.

Site type for field/place names

The SMR has two site types which cover this category: PLACENAME and FIELDNAME. These should be assigned in the following way

FIELDNAME: Names of fields which are arable, pasture and orchard.

PLACENAME: Woodland, Farms, Settlements.

Types of field/placename to record as part of this survey

When deciding what types of place/field name to record as part of this survey, all names will be divided into the following three groups

Primary names

These are names which will be recorded on the SMR in their own right; either as Sites within existing records, or as separate Areas if there is other supportive evidence of archaeological activity in the area.

Iron industry sites

Cinders	Probable iron slag – this name has been taken to indicate Roman Ciriders
	activity in parts of Herefordshire although this is likely to be a coincidence of the name with Roman smelting activity)
Gale	Indicates a mine

Iron industry	sites
Scowles	Scowles
Other industry	1
Cole	Possible coal extraction or charcoal production
Limekiln	Limekiln
Mill	Mill
Leat	Artificial watercourse possible associated with a mill
Forge	Forge
Furnace	Furnace
Windmill	Usually taken to mean a field which had a windmill in it – if found in conjunction with Tump/mound/hill it is sometimes taken to suggest an earthwork which may be of other archaeological value
Querns	Indicates a quarry/quarry like pitted landscape
Quarry	Quarry
	tructures we want to record
Conygar	Rabbit warrens
Ice House	May refer to the site of an ice house
Pidgeon/	May suggest the site of the Dove cote
Dove	, 55
Pillows	Probably Rabbit Warrens, but could be other bumps
Earthwork site
Barrow	These names can suggest Barrows or other earthworks. The name
Berry	can also suggest a banked enclosure such as a hill fort etc.
Burgh
Bury Bumpy
Holes	Can mean quarries or scowles
Hummocky	This name can suggest Barrows or other earthworks
Low/Law/	Mound possible a burial mound from Old English "Hlaw" – But
Loe	beware "Low" simply indicating topography – if in doubt treat as secondary
Moat	Probably a moat, but could indicate a motte
Pits	Pitted, could indicate scowles or other industrial features
Tump	Could mean discrete bumps e.g. barrow, but could equally refer to general irregular ground of other origins (e.g. scowles)
Work/Wark	Can mean Work as in Earthwork
Park names
Leap Gate	Deer Leap
Lypiatt	Deer Leaps
Park	Park – this can refer to a medieval deer park, but Beware
Pale	Park boundary
	ated with a post-medieval ornamental garden -you should assume late to medieval deer parks
	ings type names
Castle	Not necessarily a castle may refer to masonry remains
Chessles	This name is often associated with masonry (Roman) type remains
Camp	Can indicate the site of an earthwork of some sort

Castle	Not necessarily a castle may refer to masonry remains
Chessles	This name is often associated with masonry (Roman) type remains
Camp	Can indicate the site of an earthwork of some sort
Portway	Usually indicated a road to some important town
Street	Paved roadway
Dwarf/Pixie	Association with mythical creatures can suggest antiquity and is
Devil/Giant	worth recording

Secondary names

These are names which will be added to existing SMR areas as sites, but which would not be recorded as separate SMR Areas without other supportive evidence of archaeological activity in the area. Names in this category should be underlined in green on the project copy of the relevant 19th century map.

	Names shaded thus could be classed as Primary Names if found where open field agriculture is not expected e.g. woodland. – If in doubt treat as Secondary may suggest industrial activity
Blakes	Blackened fields: These may suggest early industrial activity, but
Blacks	could equally well just indicate black soul, especially if found in Blaxe	conjunction with indicators of meadows or boggy ground (e.g. moor of mead) and there are no other indicators to suggest early industrial sites
Names which	may suggest earthworks, or quarrying but could just be or relate to ridge and furrow
Causeway	May refer to a linear earthwork, but could just be a causeway
Dun/Dean	Hill/mound thought to be often associated with a settlement of some
,	type
Hills	May just be topographical
Lynch/	Indicates a ridge/bank – has all the same problems as to actual
Lunch	meaning as Ridge/Riggs type names
Mount	Names with this element may indicate the site of a mound, but could be topographical
Nash	Actually indicates headland and has no end of variables e.g. Naas
Rigs/ridges	Where used in conjunction with numbers e.g. "twelve riggs" or a plural this name probably indicated ridge and furrow rather than a linear earthwork
Rough	May just mean rough ground ground
Rudge	May refer to a linear earthwork – especially if in conjunction with
01	"Old" – could equally well refer to ridge and furrow
Stoney/stone	May just mean naturally stony ground
archaeologica	suggest antiquity, but do not necessarily indicate
Old	As in "Old hills"
Hoar	This just means old
	nimal husbandry names
Barn	Probably indicates a field with a barn in it
Cot/Cabin	May be Cottage, but could be shelter or shed of no significance
Pool/Pond	Need not be more significant than a farm pond
Reddings	Usually means cleared woodland, but, apparently can indicated ochre working sites, check if this is in the right sort of area for this interpretation
Viney/	May indicate the site of former Vineyards
Win	,
Well/Wall	Could be a well, but could also suggest an earthwork if Wall, could suggest pre-Saxon settlement site
Park names
Lodge	In the central Forest this name could refer to a Forest Lodge – It may also simply be a 19 th Century House name
Other names
Cuckoo Pen	Actually probably means "Cuckold's Wood" i.e. the site of illicit shenanigans, but has been associated with antiquities in some circles (I think the association is actually coincidental)
Turnpike	As a field name (e.g. Turnpike field) need only indicate that the field

indicate the site of any structure

Apparently meaningless names

Where field names appear to be completely meaningless words, which may actually be indicative of some antiquity e.g. "Heneague" you should look them up to attempt to interpret them. If in doubt you should treat such names as Secondary

Good places to check out the possible meanings of place names (and therefore their likely significance) are:-

Smith 1964 - There is a particularly useful section in Vol. 3, which lists a number of Old English (whatever that is) words and their meanings.

DAG Field name studies report - this is worth a read, although set our rather strangely if you want to try and use it as a dictionary.

Tertiary names

These are place names which will not be added to the SMR as part of this survey, or annotated on the project copy of 19th century maps

annotated on the	e project copy of 19" century maps.
Close	Small enclosure
Church	Relating to a church NB This name is only tertiary if it is clearly locational and relating to an existing Church – If you suspect it may infer the site of a demolished church it should be added to the SMR
Croft	Small enclosure
Common	Probably just indicates an area of former open common
Dog Kennel	Just a dog kennel, probably a temporary structure
Dole	To do with meadows
Down	Will tend to simply mean former open pasture, but beware of Dun type names see above
Furlong	Former open field division
Five acre	And any other combination of sizes
Frith	Wood – often corrupted into modern English e.g. Farthing
Gastons	Meadow
Gore	To do with open field shapes
Ham	Meadow
Harp	This and many other similar names are to do with field shape – look at the field and see if this is a likely explanation
Hays	Probably a Hay field
Laines	Former open field strips (may have Ridge and furrow however)
Lands	Former open field division
Langet	Long thin field
Leaze/Lays	Fallow ground
Leg of mutton	This and many other similar names are to do with field shape – look at the field and see if this is a likely explanation
Moor	Meadow
North	And any other compass point
Pant	Valley
Pen	Slope – often corrupted into modern English e.g. Penny
Pheasant	May refer to 19 th century temporary buildings
Plock	To do with enclosure, generally of meadows
Picked	This and many other similar names are to do with field shape – look at the field and see if this is a likely explanation
Tyning	Enclosure
Wang/wong	Former open field division
Wern	Enclosure
	e meaning of which is self evident and which do not appear to be ore significant namese.g. Field below the Hill/Barn field/Barley
Field – Beware	that these are not just corruptions of significant names however

In addition to the above identified sites of ubiquitous village activities will not be added to the SMR. This will include

- Smithies
- Schools
- Public Houses
- Chapels

When completing the source record for these maps the following should be recorded in the Reference Description field of the Area Source Reference as follows:-

Lydney tithe map and apportionment (1849).

i.e. the source of the mapped information as per Gwatkin's reference on the map

Sheet 63.

When a 19th century rectified map has been full checked and annotated, the copy should be initialled, dated and marked "Checked"

D.v 1608 map of the western part of the Forest of Dean: Source Works 1 & 2919

- Two sources should be used:-
 - Source Work 1 –Bromide copy of original map
 - Source Work 2919 Clissold's rectified copy taken from Standing 1987
- A copy of Clissold's map should be checked for field or placename evidence in accordance with the specification for checking map sources set out in D.i above – Identified sites or areas were shaded yellow on a working copy of the map.
- Interesting field or place names not added to the SMR should be underlined in green on the working copy of the map in accordance with the specification for checking map sources set out in D.i above.
- Field or placenames already on the SMR, or to be added to be added to the SMR should be underlined in red on the working copy of the map, with the SMR number written alongside in accordance with the specification for checking map sources set out in D.i above.
- Information about the location, extent and names of roads should not be added to the SMR as part of this process.
- Field or placenames identified on the copies of the Clissold maps should be checked against the bromide copies of the original borrowed.

When this operation was undertaken by Laura Butler of the Archaeology Service in June 2004, a number of discrepancies between Clissold's rectified version of the 1608 map, and the bromide copies of the original.

Rectified copy from Standing 1987	Bromide copy of original 1608 map	SMR number
Wood Mill	Wood Myll	SMR 6487
-	Silverland	SMR 26862
-	The little Parke	SMR 21473
Berrye Croft	Berrye Croaft	SMR 26867
Leggcastel Hill	The Legg Castle hill	SMR 26848

D.vi Other early maps sources

All other early map sources should be accessed in the same way as the 19th century Parish maps (see D.i above.)

D.vii The Victoria History of the County of Gloucester: Source Works 3710 and 894

The Victoria County History (Source Works 3710 and 894) is being approached on a parish-by-parish basis. Since the text is of a cursive style, and relates to the history and archaeology of each parish, each parish will be tackled after the basic checking of the SMR has been carried out for that parish, preferably by the same person.

The VCH contains much historical information, a great deal of which is very useful to an archaeological survey. However, it also includes much historical detail, especially relating to tithes, land ownership, manors and local government. To extract archaeological information, there needs to be careful consideration of the material within the VCH. Although the VCH is arranged thematically, certain pieces of archaeological information appear throughout the document, meaning that it must be read (at least speedily) in its entirety.

General methodological issues relating to the VCH

Some general rules apply to the inclusion of information into the SMR. It is recognised that written guidelines do not cover all eventualities, and as a general principal borderline cases should be added to the SMR, regardless of site type.

Buildings

In general, buildings should only be added to the SMR if they were built before about 1700 or are of particular historical or architectural significance (i.e. they are either listed or should be listed.) – Borderline cases should be added to the SMR.

Buildings with specific functions e.g. pubs or schools should only be added if they conform to the above standards - Borderline cases should be added to the SMR. (This rule does not apply to other categories of building [e.g. industrial buildings, churches, non-conformist chapels] – the circumstances under which these are added to SMR from this source is set out below.)

The sites of all buildings that no longer exist at all should be added to the SMR where these can be located, pre-date about 1700 or were of particular historical or architectural value. This will apply where buildings within the above category are recorded as having been "rebuilt". - Borderline cases should be added to the SMR.

Detailed buildings information

As a general rule of thumb VCH data should only be added to the Area Notes of existing SMR records for buildings if it adds significantly to an understanding of the history of the site. Detailed architectural information or details of progressive ownership should not be added.

Adding the VCH as a source work is, however, a minimum requirement

Other monuments

Any monument (as defined by the EH Thesaurus of Monument Types), that has surviving material remains of archaeological interest shall be included, where it can be located. This, obviously, includes many archaeological areas.

Uncertain sites (either spatially or temporally uncertain)

Location of uncertain areas. Where sites cannot be precisely located the following rules apply - Anything medieval or earlier (pre- about 1540) or sites which would be added to the SMR if they could be located more precisely, should be included on the SMR and mapped as a circle. If there is no information on location available from the

VCH, they should be added to the list of queries. Borderline cases should be added to the SMR

Landscape features. E.g. deer parks.

The location of these is often uncertain from the text information available in the VCH. These should be added to the list of queries for inclusion during the consultation of map sources – if they are not locatable from these sources they should be included on the SMR and mapped as a circle

Placenames.

These should be added to the list of queries for inclusion during the consultation of map sources. If they are not locatable from these sources they should be included on the SMR, and mapped (as a circle) as closely to their location as possible

VCH Methodology (thematic)

The VCH is arranged in a thematic manner under the following categories;

- A general parish introduction
- Communication routes
- Tithings and various general parish organisation
- Manors and other estates
- Economic History
- Local government
- Churches
- Education
- Charities for the Poor

Below is set out the methodology employed with each of these thematic sources from the VCH.

A general parish introduction, including topographical, geological and some prehistoric references.

This includes much general comment about the parish.

Add to SMR; General landscape archaeological features, for example sea wall relating to early land reclamation, etc. If these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries.

Locatable sites of wrecks – if these are not precisely locatable they should be mapped as a circle or added to the list of queries as appropriate.

Do not add to SMR; Natural features, the exact location of land reclaimed/lost to/from the sea.

Communication routes.

At this stage of the project all references to communications routes should be added to the list of queries. To be included when that issue is separately addressed. At an appropriate time communication routes should be treated in the following way

Add to SMR; Communication routes should be added to the SMR in conformance with the existing Standards set up for linear features early (e.g. Roman) roads, courses of early routes which have changed significantly in terms of their form or function, this will include sites of a (very) uncertain date e.g. "ancient" trackways. The site of physical structures relating to early communication routes e.g. tollgates, bridges, or where these are of particular historical/architectural significance.

Do not add to SMR; General road improvements, the modern road layout (unless this includes known early routes e.g. Roman roads), footpaths (which are not on the line of early routes – see above), railways (already in the SMR).

Tithings and various general parish organisation, including references to each tithing, and various early buildings/industry.

Add to SMR; References to buildings pre- about 1700 (see above), references to earthworks - particularly prehistoric, deserted villages/settlements/etc.

Do not add to SMR; Buildings dating after about 1700 (unless re-built earlier buildings – see above), services (gas, water, etc), village halls and friendly societies if not built before about 1700, general tithe information.

Manors and other estates.

These mainly deal with land and property ownership, but occasionally include information of archaeological interest (particularly early evidence for buildings).

Economic History

Agriculture

Add to SMR; Any archaeologically relevant information.

Do not add to SMR; General agricultural detail, numbers of tenants, farmers, owners, etc, areas of common land, enclosure details. Farmhouses and agricultural buildings which post-date about 1700 and do not have particular historical or architectural value should not be added to the SMR.

Fisheries

Locatable features relating to this industry (e.g. fish traps, weirs) should be added to the SMR – if these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries.

Other industry and trade

Add to SMR; All industrial sites or buildings which pre-date about 1900 should be added to the SMR regardless of the nature of the industry. If these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries.

All industrial sites or buildings associated with the extractive or metallurgical processing industries should be added to the SMR regardless of date. Other industrial sits or features of particular significance to the Forest of Dean, or of other historical or architectural value should be added. If these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries. Borderline cases should be added to the SMR

Do not add to SMR; General descriptions of traders, workers, mariners, and general descriptions of areas of industry.

Local government

General local government records are not included in the SMR, except for buildings and/or sites of interest.

Churches

All churches should be included on the SMR if they can be located. Where churches cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries for eventual inclusion as a site of uncertain location.

As there is much historical detail about all churches, detailed information should not be added to the Area Notes, although the VCH should be added as a Source work.

Nonconformist Religious houses

Nonconformist religious houses should be included if they are locatable, pre-date about 1900 or are of particular historical/architectural significance. Borderline cases should be added to the SMR

If these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries.

Where the VCH contains much historical detail about these, detailed information should not be added to the Area Notes, although the VCH should be added as a Source work.

Education

Educational buildings should only be included if they are locatable, pre-date about 1700 or are of particular historical/architectural significance. Borderline cases should be added to the SMR

If these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries.

Charities for the Poor

Information about charities for the poor are generally not included in the SMR, except for buildings and/or sites of particular archaeological interest. Such buildings should only be included in the SMR if they are locatable, pre-date about 1700 or are of particular historical/architectural significance. Borderline cases should be added to the SMR

If these cannot be located they should be added to the list of queries.

Military sites

All military sites recorded in the VCH should be added to the SMR. These should be added to the military layer (C20Milit) rather than SMRcnty if they date to the 20th century.

This will include temporary army camps, prisoner of war camps and military camps currently in use.

Where these cannot be precisely located they should be mapped as a circle. If they cannot be located at all they should be added to the query list .

Practical methodology

- Read through photocopy of VCH record annotating sections in pencil you think should be added to SMR (either by underlining or brackets)
- Go though record adding relevant information. Annotate the photocopy of the VCH record thus:-
 - Where data is either added to an existing record or a new SMR record is created write the SMR number in pencil in the margin next to the annotated text.

- Where data is added to the list of queries, place a ? in pencil in the margin next to the annotated text
- Where annotated information is not added to the SMR write NOT ADDED in pencil next to the annotated text.

Query sheets

Each VCH query which cannot immediately be added to the SMR, will be recorded on an Excel file, listing all the problematic sites, with details on how they can be solved.

This sheet should record the following:-

- The Source Work name.
- The Source Work number.
- The page number of the gueried section of the VCH record.
- The site name / brief description.
- The nature of the guery / problem.
- The proposed source/area of research needed to allow the query to be fully integrated into the SMR.
- A tick box stated if the query has been resolved.

D.viii Listed buildings information:

This source has various source work reference numbers. Information is contained in Listed Buildings "greenbacks" of text information curated by the Archaeology Service.

Data extraction methodology :-

- Check on a parish-by-parish basis.
- Re-digitised onto SMR-LB layer, in line with current SMR policy, symbology 2763.
- Source Work entry for DOE volume amended to include page number and map sheet, e.g. p128, map 6/270 SO50SE
- Source Work 6516 (MARS photos) added to all buildings listed before 1990 (date of the survey).

Listed Buildings - An SMR methodology;

The following protocols should be used when adding listed buildings to the SMR or moving records to the new SMR_LB overlay:

- New listings should be given a new Area number and digitised onto the SMR_LB layer using the extent shown on the listed building maps. Buildings digitised on SMR or SMRcnty should be moved onto SMR_LB and deleted from SMR or SMRcnty.
- Where a listed building Area record includes Site information not specific to the building (watching brief, evaluation etc) the listing information should be transferred to a new Area record and the original record edited to only detail the archaeological work undertaken at that location. It is more likely that site files will have been created to store reports stemming from a piece of archaeological work at a listed building than for the building itself so site file maintenance will be minimised. (It should be remembered that listing refers to the building not the archaeology beneath it.)
- New archaeological work on an existing listed building should be recorded as a separate SMR Area and cross-referenced to. If that building sits within a larger Area record (as in the example below) then the archaeological work should be added to that.
- If a listed building is within an existing SMR Area and forms an integral part of the monument recorded as that Area, then it should be recorded as a component of that record. However, only the extent of the building itself should be digitised on the SMR_LB overlay and it should be tagged with the Site number (e.g. 1234/3). If the building is unrelated to the monument within which it sits then it should be recorded as a separate SMR Area and digitised on the SMR_LB.

• Where churches, churchyards and churchyard monuments are listed, one Area record should be created for the church, churchyard and any monuments. The listed church and any listed monuments should be included as Sites under that Area. The church building should be digitised on SMR_LB, and tagged with the Area number. Where churchyard monuments are locatable on OSLINE data or the main sheet of paper listed building maps (NOT detailed inset maps), they should be separately digitised on SMR_LB and tagged with their Site number. Monuments not locatable from these sources need not be digitised separately. Any archaeological work undertaken within the Area can also be included as a Site record and, if required, used to create additional Area records depending on the evidence found (e.g. evidence of a Roman villa at the same location).

D.ix NMR Long Listings: Source ;Work 4249

Data extraction methodology:-

- Listings should be sorted into parish order, and compared to the SMR at the end of the SMR checking and before the VCH checking of each parish.
- If SMR has no entry for a site detailed in the Long Listings, a new SMR area is created, if the site can be located.
- If SMR has no entry for a site detailed in the Long Listing, and the site cannot be located, details should be added to the list of problems by parish, to be dealt with later.
- IF SMR entry exists, but the NMR Long Listing contains additional information, that information is added to the entry, and the Long Listing added as a Source Work.
- If the Long Listing does not contain any additional information, it is still added as a Source Work.
- Additional sources noted on the NMR Long Listing which are not currently listed as Source Works on an SMR entry have NOT been added to the SMR, although the NMR Long Listing itself is ALWAYS added as a Source Work to the SMR entry.
- If a Long listing is added to the SMR as a Source Work, the NMR Unique Identifier and NMR Numbers are added to the Source Work reference description.
- The relevant Glos SMR number should be added to the paper copy of the NMR long listing as each record is checked. This should be written at the top of the first sheet of the Long Listing

D.x Coleford – The History of a West Gloucestershire Town, Hart C, 1983, Source Work 824

Data extraction methodology:-

- The methodology for extracting data from the VCH (see D.vii above) should be applied to this Source.
- Text should by trawled in a systematic way and information added to SMR.
- Details of immediately un-locatable sites should be added to the list of source work problems by parish, for more detailed research later.
- The majority of the information within 'Property Transactions' sections are unlocatable and therefore cannot be not added to SMR or usefully added to list of problems.
- TRAMROADS pp243-253. The tram road entries on the SMR are in good order following recent re-editing by SMR staff. Therefore, this volume should be added as a Source Work, with a brief mention in the Area Notes. (SMR 20425).
- RAILWAYS 326-334. The railway entries on the SMR are in good order following recent re-editing by SMR staff. Therefore, this volume should be added as a Source Work, with a brief mention in the Area Notes. (SMR 5702,6076).
- MALTHOUSES these are industrial sites and should be added to the SMR.
- PUBS these should not be added to the SMR unless they pre-date c.1700 or are of particular historical or architectural significance (i.e. they are either listed or should be listed). Some pubs that fall outside of these criteria are already on the SMR; in these instances this volume has been added as a Source Work, with relevant information added to the Area Notes.

D.xi Riverine Dean, Putley J, 1999: Source Work 5944

Data extraction methodology

- Work through Gazetteer section only
- Check if recorded sites are on the SMR
- Check if any new information needs adding to SMR.
- Add information to area notes
- Add new sites as appropriate
- Add this source as a source Work
- Annotate Office copy with appropriate SMR number

D.xii Other text-based sources

Other text based sources should be accessed in accordance with the specifications for information derived from the Victoria County History (see D.vii above). Copies of source works should be annotated with appropriate SMR numbers (in pencil) to allow rapid checking of the SMR.

Appendix E Specifications for checking or adding certain types of site to the Sites and Monuments Record as part of Stage 1

E.i Existing SMR records known only from Aerial Photographic sources

It is assumed that all existing SMR entries known from aerial photographic sources will be re-mapped as part of the National Mapping Programme for the Forest of Dean in Gloucestershire. This will include crop-marks, soil marks and some earthwork features, such as ridge and furrow.

Accordingly the following procedure should be followed when checking these SMR entries

- 1. The GIS mapping of the entry itself should only be checked to see if it is correctly located with reference to the NGR co-ordinates on the Area screen.
- 2. The 1st-3rd Series OS maps and Gwatkin maps should be checked to see if there is any cartographical evidence relating to these features. If they are not a statement, to this effect they should be added to the Area Notes field. This should be referenced as a "pers. comm." and your details added to the area contacts THE OS MAPS SHOULD NOT BE ADDED AS A SOURCE WORK ON THE TREE. IF ANY NEGATIVE SOURCES ARE LISTED AS SOURCE WORKS ON THE TREE, THEY SHOULD BE DELETED
- 3. Even if there is evidence of earthworks on 1st-3rd series OS maps and/or Gwatkin maps, the GIS mapping of the feature should NOT be altered at this stage, as this may be at odds with the AP data. New sites, however, can be added to the database from the map evidence the CONSTRUCTION field for these should be recorded as CARTOGRAPHIC, and the SMR database information should be checked in accordance with the normal routine for the Forest of Dean project.
- 4. Where no cartographic evidence for these areas is found, no further checking of the entry should be undertaken at this stage with the following exceptions:-
- Available Area Status fields should be checked
- Forest Enterprise Landownership should be checked and added if appropriate – Forest Enterprise landuse, however should not be checked as detailed AP information may alter this.
- An SMR checklist form showing the extent of the checking should be filled in and added to the Parish file – This form should be marked AP in its top right hand corner
- These entries should be marked AP in the parish checklists Excel files.

Although the current mapping of large-scale landscape features, such as ridge and furrow, is likely to change as a result of the NMP project, such features should not be deleted from the SMR as part of this process

E.ii Lime kilns

All Limekilns, which can be located, will be added to the SMR

Where Limekilns are spatially associated with an identified quarry, or with each other, professional judgement may allow for them to be reasonably placed in the same polygon. In this case they should be these should be designated as Sites within the SMR Area represented by the quarry or the group of kilns. The grid reference of individual kilns should be recorded on the Site screen (if deemed appropriate it should be mapped on the SMRdetail layer).

Where Limekilns are spatially discrete (i.e. professional judgment concludes that they cannot be reasonably be placed in the same polygon as an identified mine) they should be mapped as a point feature and designates as a separate Area.

Limekilns are a post-medieval phenomenon, accordingly all limekilns are presumed to be post-medieval in date. The SMR record should be completed as follows:-

- GENERAL PERIOD should be POST-MEDIEVAL
- SPECIFIC PERIOD should be C16 C17 C18 C19 C20

E.iii Mine shafts / Air shafts

All mineshafts, which can be located, will be added to the SMR

Where mineshafts are spatially associated with an identified mine (i.e. professional judgement allows them to be reasonably placed in the same polygon), or other related feature (e.g. spoil heap) these should be designated as Sites within the SMR Area represented by the mine. The grid reference of the shaft should be recorded on the Site screen (if deemed appropriate it should be mapped on the SMRdetail layer).

Where mine shafts are spatially discrete (i.e. professional judgment concludes that they cannot be reasonably be placed in the same polygon as an identified mine) they should be mapped as a point feature and designates as a separate Area.

Where a discrete mine shaft can be interpreted as related to an identified mine (either through spatial proximity or historical information) or other feature, the shaft should be cross referenced to the mine (and the mine, or other feature to the shaft) and this information added to the Areas Description and Area Notes fields as appropriate.

Where subsequent research indicates that a discrete mine shaft is related to an identified mine, or other feature, the shaft should be cross referenced to the mine (and the mine to the shaft or other feature) and this information added to the Areas Description and Area Notes fields as appropriate.

Deep mining did not really begin in the Forest of Dean until the 17th century. Accordingly all mine/air shafts are presumed to be post-medieval in date. The SMR record should be completed as follows:-

- GENERAL PERIOD should be POST-MEDIEVAL
- SPECIFIC PERIOD should be 16 17 18 19 20

E.iv Minerals extraction and processing waste

Iron Processing - Cinders Mounds/slag heaps

"Slag Heaps" are refuse from the SMELTING process '

Cinders Mounds' and 'Slag Heaps' are the same thing - the NMR term is 'Slag Heap' (they don't have 'Cinders Mound' listed at all).

All iron smelting refuse (including things described in literary sources as "Cinders Mounds" should be given the site type "Slag Heap" to conform to national standards

The term 'Cinders Mound' will be removed from the SMR glossary and the (2) sites designated as such will be changed. Existing "Slag heaps" have been checked to ensure they refer to waste from the smelting process.

All slag heaps should contain "Slag" as an artefact

Minerals extraction

"Spoil Heaps" are refuse from the EXTRACTION process.

According to the NMR glossary tips of waste from minerals extraction sites are not slag heaps.

Waste from coal, iron or any other mineral extraction, should be termed "Spoil Heap"

Existing "Spoil Heaps" have been checked to ensure they refer to waste from the extraction process

E.v Quarries

The dating of quarries is clearly a problematic are, and professional judgement and flexibility should be used at all times when applying the following guidelines

Quarries which cannot be scowles

Cartographic sources should not be treated as firm evidence for the absence of features at a certain period. "Absence of evidence is not evidence of absence" is particularly true of cartographic sources which are subject to a whole range of value judgements in the thinking that underpins the mapping process. The appearance of quarries on a map of a particular date, where they had been absent on earlier maps, or even earlier editions of the same map, should be treated with caution in terms of indicating the date of the quarry. Unless other indicators suggest that the mapping genuinely reflects the date of the quarry (and a certain amount of professional judgement will be required in some cases), the dating of quarries should remain as UNKNOWN, although a record of the map evidence for the quarry should be stated in the AREA NOTES

If in any doubt as to the strength of evidence to the contrary all quarries should be treated as undated features and the SMR record should be filled in as follows:-

- GENERAL PERIOD should be UNKNOWN
- SPECIFIC PERIOD should be UNKNOWN

In many instances you will have a hunch that the quarry in question is post-medieval, but no firm dating evidence. The following rules of thumb can be used to suggest the likely date of a quarry:-

- If a quarry is NOT recorded on an earlier edition of the OS map in an area which is well documented (e.g. adjacent to a built up area, or associated with other industrial features which clearly display differential mapping at different periods), this CAN be interpreted as evidence that the quarry probably did not exist when the earlier map was surveyed.
- If a quarry is NOT recorded on an earlier edition of the OS map in a remote area (e.g. an area of woodland, where there is NO strong evidence of differential mapping at different periods) this CANNOT be treated as evidence the quarry did not exist when the earlier map was surveyed.
- In theory the OS tends to distinguish between active and disused quarries.
 Therefore if a site is recorded as "Quarry" on the 1880 map (especially if other quarries in the area are recorded as "Old Quarry") and recorded as "Old Quarry" in 1900, this may indicate that the quarry was active in 1880 and is therefore likely to be post-medieval
- Tithe/estate/early industrial site maps are trickier as the way quarries are recorded may differ from map to map, and it is important to determine the purpose of the map, and the types of things they are likely to record, before making decisions. The following rules of thumb may suggest the date of quarries on the Geoff Gwatkin rectified parish maps:-
 - A placename e.g. "Quarry Field" with no landuse record of a quarry is likely to mean that any quarry in that area was already disused at that time.
 - A quarry recorded with a clear purpose e.g. "Lime quarry" or "Brick pit" is likely to mean that it was active at that time.
 - Quarries associated with post-medieval features such as Limekilns are likely to be post-medieval.
 - If something is simply recorded as "Quarry" on these maps, it is less clear exactly what this means. Given that these maps tend to be about recording items of economic importance, I'm inclined to think that this is more likely to mean they were active than not – although a certain amount of professional judgement may be needed in these cases. Where this occurs, state the reasons for your dating of the quarry in the Area Notes field. Where this occurs the Quarry should still be assigned an UNKNOWN date in the general and specific period fields, but the probable post-medieval date of the quarry should be stated in the Area Notes and also in the Area description thus:-

Quarries which could be scowles

Features shown on maps as quarries, but identified by Paul Wildgoose as scowles should be recorded in the following way:-

- SITE 1 = SCOWLE CONSTRUCTION = RECORDED (Wildgoose has recorded these features in the field)
- SITE 2= Quarry; Construction = Cartographic (say in the area notes that the feature is shown as 'Quarry' or 'Old Quarry' on old maps).

Where quarries are mapped as hashers, but not labelled "Quarry", are in an area where scowles would be expected and where no other evidence suggests that the quarry, in its present form is not a scowle, they should be recorded in the following way:-

- SITE 1 is classed SCOWLE CONSTRUCTION is CIRCUMSTANTIAL
- SITE 2 is classed as QUARRY CONSTRUCTION is either OTHER STRUCTURE or CARTOGRAPHIC as appropriate.

Where quarries are mapped in an area where scowles would be expected but where other evidence suggests that the quarry, in its present form is not a scowle, or where they are labelled "Quarry" on the map, they should be recorded in the following way:-

- AREA DESCRIPTION This should mention that the quarry may have originated as a scowle
- SITE 1 is classed as QUARRY CONSTRUCTION is either OTHER STRUCTURE or CARTOGRAPHIC as appropriate.
- SITE 2 is classed SCOWLE CONSTRUCTION is CIRCUMSTANTIAL

NOTE - 18/9/2003

JPH checked all sites designated "Quarry" and "Pit" and reassigned some as "Ironstone Pit" on the basis of early OS records (this actually only applied to c. 5 sites designated "Pit" the only possible candidate designated "Quarry" was Shakemantle iron mine (Glos 4375) which is marked "Ironstone Pits disused on 2nd and 3rd Series OS maps. This is marked as "mine" on the 1st Series OS and accordingly this designation is considered to be linguistic rather than indicative of opencast mining

Appendix H SMR Data structure

H.i Database structure - 'Area - Site - Artefact'

The diagram below explains the structure of the data held in the SMR:

The structure can be thought of in terms of layers of information required for specific purposes. Development control requires information on the location, significance and extent of an Area whilst academic research might require information on the number of Site types in a given area or on a specific type of Artefact.

H.ii Archaeological Area Records

Archaeological Area Records are the units by which archaeological information is stored on the SMR and all data held on the SMR database must belong to an Area. An Area can be defined as a discrete archaeological monument (round barrow, hillfort), a recognition event (watching brief, archaeological evaluation), a stray find or a combination of these.

Each Archaeological Area Record will 'own' a number of other sub-records relating to the Area's map reference, OS land parcel, geology, land use and parish as well as any contact information, cross-references to other SMR Areas and bibliographic information. Most importantly, each Area Record will have one or more Archaeological Site Records and may have one or more Archaeological Artefacts.

H.iii Archaeological Site Records

An Archaeological Site can be defined as a recognition event within an Area (such as a watching brief or an excavation), a component of that Area record (such as a mine office, a mine shaft or a winding wheel where the Area would be Hopewell Colliery) or an archaeological feature that contains artefactual remains. Site records function as the SMR's main indexing mechanism by using a glossary of terms based on the RCHME's Thesaurus of Monument Types (with additions specific to Gloucestershire SMR – e.g. Scowle) that allow the recording of 'recognition events' such as watching briefs and excavations.

Site records can thus describe any of the following:

- Visible field monuments such as hillforts, barrows or deserted medieval villages.
- Buried sites known only from excavation evidence.
- Standing buildings or structures.
- Buried features known only from aerial photographic evidence.
- Features known from documentary sources.
- Components of an archaeological site such as pits and ditches.

The number of Site records 'owned' by an Area record will depend upon the number of components that go to make up that Area. However, all Area records should have at least one Site entry. Some Site records created during the Offa's Dyke Project also 'own' Site Survey records entries but these have not been used for other SMR records.

H.iv Archaeological Artefacts

A Site record can, in turn, 'own' Artefact records that record portable archaeological objects.

Artefacts can also be recorded as Area records when a stray find is the only evidence available. In this instance, Artefacts records will sit under a Site record recorded as 'Object'.

H.v Structure and numbering

The numbering of these items of information reflects the hierarchical design of the database:

- An Archaeological Area Record will have a unique number such as 10136.
- Archaeological Site Records 'owned' by Area 10136 will have subsidiary numbers such as 10136/1 for Site 1, 10136/2 for Site 2, 10136/3 for Site 3 etc.
- Archaeological Artefacts 'owned' by Site 10136/1 will have subsidiary numbers such as 10136/1/1 for the 1st artefact, 10136/1/2 for the 2nd artefact and 10136/1/3 for the 3rd SMR checklist. Forest of Dean Archaeological Survey

Also - Specific Type:-

- Pillow mound
- Rabbit Warren

We should also mention the following which are basically the same as possible prehistoric enclosures

- o Bury
- o Bailey

J.iii The later prehistoric periods

Iron Age sites

With iron age sites we are looking for evidence of iron-age activity outside of the known hillforts

General iron age activity search pattern:-

- Contains Iron Age (SP) sites
- Contains Iron Age (SP) artefacts

Other search patterns may become obvious as a result of these searches but we will also need to encompass enclosures or earthworks which may be iron age – these may belong to other parts of the prehistoric and we may need to discuss them as undated enclosures – search pattern:-

- Unknown or Prehistoric (GP)
 - o Earthwork (ST)
 - o Enclosure (ST)
 - o Bank (ST)
 - Curvilinear enclosure(ST)
 - o D shaped enclosure (ST)
 - o Double ditched enclosure (ST)
 - Enclosed settlement (ST)

Place names which may indicate pre-historic enclosures or earthworks – search pattern:-

- Field name & placename (ST) description contains:
 - o Barrel
 - o Burrow
 - o Barrow
 - o Berry

These are the same as barrows but we should discuss them here – We will also need to search for:-

- o Bank
- o Ditch
- o Bury
- o Bailey
- o Balyes
- o Dykes
- o Lunch
- o Bullwarks
- o Wall
- o Wal
- o Well
- o Rodge
- o Dean
- o Dun

J.iv The Roman period

Roman Period

General Romano British activity search pattern:-

- Roman (GP) sites
- Roman (GP) artefacts

Other search patterns may become obvious as a result of these searches but we will also need to put emphasis on the nature of the evidence – i.e. clearly distinguish sites which are known only from artefact scatters and also those which are presumed to be Roman

Place names which may indicate Roman sites - search pattern:-

- Field name & placename (ST) description contains:
 - o Chest
 - o Castle
 - o Chess
 - o Shotes
 - o Rubley
 - o Stone
 - o Castors
 - o Chesnals
 - o Rubbles
 - o Rocky
 - o Cheslea
 - o Carwaie
 - Chasley

J.v The post Roman/early medieval period

Post-Roman/early medieval sites (this period covers the end of the Roman period to the Norman conquest

General early medieval activity search pattern:-

- Early Medieval (GP) sites
- Early medieval (GP) artefacts
- (SP) Contains C5 or C6 or C7or C8or C9 or C10 or C11 sites
- (SP) Contains C5 or C6 or C7or C8 or C9 or C10 or C11 artefacts

Place names which may indicate Early Saxon burial mounds – search pattern

- Field name & placename (ST) description contains:
 - o Loe
 - o Law
 - o Low
 - Lew

The early iron industry – Bloomery period – prehistoric to 16th century

This has already been dealt with visa the scowles survey – we will somehow need to integrate the information

We may need to add some information on the early charcoal blast furnace industries but this is not our priority at the present time

J.vi Post conquest period

In theory this period covers the early Norman conquest till approximately the end of the 12th century

General early medieval activity search pattern:-

- Early Medieval (GP) sites
- Early medieval (GP) artefacts
- (SP) Contains C11 or C12 sites

(SP) Contains C11 or C12 artefacts

There are a number of deserted settlements may date to this period

Search pattern:-

Place names which may indicate Early settlements - search pattern

- Field name & placename (ST) description contains:
 - o ton
 - o wich
 - o croft

Also some field systems appear to relate to these deserted settlements

Search pattern:-

- Contains Medieval (GP) and Unknown (GP)
 - o Agriculture And Subsistence (GT)

This will then need filtering

Alternatively you could search on

Early post conquest castles/mottes

Most of the searches we have already done should have picked these up, but checks would be

Search pattern:-

- Specific Type
 - o Bailey
 - o Castle
 - o Keep
 - o Motte
 - o Motte and bailey
 - o Ringwork

Place names – Many of the place names already searched for iron age sites or mounds would also fall into this category and probably should be considered in any discussion of this.

The following are most likely to indicate early post conquest castles - search pattern:-

- Field name & placename (ST) description contains:-
 - Bailey
 - o Balyes
 - o Bullwarks
 - o Castle

Medieval deer parks

The distribution of these is not well understood in the Forest – these can be identified through the Gloucestershire Historic landscape Characterisation (talk to JH) or the following:-

Search pattern:-

- Specific Type
 - o Deer leap
 - o Deer Park
 - o Park
 - o Park pale
 - o Park wall

Place names - The following are most likely to indicate medieval parks - search pattern:-

- Field name & placename (ST) description contains:
 - o Park
 - o Lyppiatt
 - o Lodge
 - Lupiats
 - o Lippet

J.vii Early communications

Early communication routes

We will need to say something about this – although we have not really fully investigated it as part of stage 1 and the following will not produce a comprehensive list of routes

Search pattern:-

- General type
 - Transportation

Appendix K Prehistoric and Roman: Tables of Evidence

K.i The Palaeolithic period

Table 1: All Palaeolithic sites within the survey area

SMR number	Description
6017	Post holes, and five hearths of unknown date, disproved cave art and late Upper Palaeolithic flint finds in a cave at Symonds Yat East, English Bicknor
19949	Upper Palaeolithic core from south-west of Woolaston station.
27857	Upper Palaeolithic blade from Ivy Cottage, Morse Lane Drybrook

Table 2: Faunal remains from cave, or possible cave sites

SMR number	Description
	Findspot of bones including an Aurochs bone and the skull of a Giant Beaver from Slaughter Stream cave, English Bicknor.
25369	Findspot of the tooth of a cave bear (Ursus spelaeus) at Pen Moel, Tidenham Chase.

K.ii The Mesolithic period

Table 3: Mesolithic sites: Surface finds

SMR Number	Description
5158	Prehistoric flint artefacts in Flaxley Woods
	Mesolithic core tool and flint implement findspot, located in garden of a house on the Littledean - Elton road.
	Flint flake, possibly of Mesolithic date, found in Abbot's Wood, Buckshaft, c.300 metres north-east of Bluerock Quarry.

Table 4: Mesolithic sites: Finds from surface artefact collection

SMR Number	Description
5043	Worked flints of prehistoric date recovered from Tidenham Chase, including a fine range of Mesolithic blades, and Early Bronze Age arrowheads.
5726	Prehistoric flint finds dating to the mesolithic and neolithic periods and Roman pottery finds from Bearse Farm, south of Clearwell, Newland.
5732	Flint finds of prehistoric date and a single bead of unknown date recovered by fieldwalking, Shot Hill, Ruardean.
9736	Flint finds of prehistoric date from north of Nedge Cop Wood, northwest of Bearse Farm, St. Briavels. The concentration of mesolithic finds may suggest a settlement site. Roman finds have also been discovered here (see SMR 9737).
9740	Mesolithic site near Eastbach Court.
9746	Flint Finds of prehistoric date from a field immediately to the north of Hathaway Barn, St. Briavels.

SMR Number	Description
9747	Prehistoric flint finds, dating from the mesolithic to the Bronze Age, and Roman pottery recovered during fieldwalking at Noxon Farm, south-east of Clearwell, Newland.
9748	Prehistoric flint finds, dating from the mesolithic to the Bronze Age, and Roman pottery recovered during fieldwalking at Bearse Farm, south-east of Clearwell, Newland.
9749	Flint Finds of prehistoric date, and two Romano-British glass beads, recovered during fieldwalking from a field to the east of Closeturf Farm, St. Briavels.
9751	Prehistoric Finds; mesolithic and neolithic flint implements. Located west of Cottage Farm.
11050	Prehistoric flint scatter dating from the Mesolithic to Bronze Age periods from south of Noxon Pool, Noxon Farm, Clearwell, Newland.
17612	Flint finds from land to the south of Trowgreen Farm, recovered by fieldwalking.
17613	Flint finds from Noxon Farm, recovered by fieldwalking. The finds indicate that flint knapping has taken place at this site.
17615	Flint finds of prehistoric date, recovered from near Pathwell Farm by Dean Archaeological Group.
18409	Possible building/occupation debris - S of Blakeney
19415	Eight flints including a mesolithic microlith, a scraper and a neolithic leaf-shaped arrowhead, found during fieldwalking at Chelfridge adjacent to Bream Scowles.
19924	Prehistoric flint finds and post medieval pot finds from fieldwalking at Black Rock Farm, Lydney.
19938	Scatter of 22 flints, probably prehistoric in date, found at Parsons Allotment, Tidenham Chase.
19950	Mesolithic Microlith found in a mole-hill, at or near Turnips Grove.
20024	Flint implement of Mesolithic date, Stroat.
20026	Three flints finds of Mesolithic date, from near Cowmeadow Farm, English Bicknor.
20053	Mesolithic scraper, found near Cowmeadow Farm, English Bicknor.
20503	Three Mesolithic microliths found at Caudwell Farm, Stowe Green, Newland.
21712	Prehistoric broad blade flint flake and mesolithic microlith findspot. Located at Chestnuts Hill, Littledean.

Table 5: Mesolithic sites: Finds of surface artefacts found by metal detectors

SMR Number	Description
	Finds of Mesolithic and Neolithic date from Longhope parish recorded by the Portable Antiquities Scheme in 2004.
	Finds of Mesolithic and early Neolithic date from Lydney parish recorded by the Portable Antiquities Scheme in 2004.

K.iii Neolithic artefacts

Table 6: Neolithic Flint finds revored as a result of field walking

SMR Number	Description
	Scatter of 23 flints, including 7 worked/retouched flints of likely Neolithic data and a leaf shaped arrowhead, found to the north-east of Brooks Head Grove, English Bicknor.

SMR Number	Description
5726	Prehistoric flint finds dating to the mesolithic and neolithic periods and Roman pottery finds from Bearse Farm, south of Clearwell, Newland.
5727	Flint finds of Neolithic date to the north of Longley Farm, Newland 'Burrows's.
5732	Flint finds with a date range of the Mesolithic to the Bronze Age and a single bead of unknown date recovered by fieldwalking, Shot Hill, Ruardean.
9736	Flint finds with a date range of the Mesolithic to the Bronze Age from north of Nedge Cop Wood, north-west of Bearse Farm, St. Briavels. Roman finds have also been discovered here (see SMR 9737).
9746	Flint Finds with a date range of the Mesolithic to the Bronze Age from a field immediately to the north of Hathaway Barn, St. Briavels.
9747	Flint finds, dating from the mesolithic to the Bronze Age, and Roman pottery recovered during fieldwalking at Noxon Farm, south-east of Clearwell, Newland. The majority of the retouched flints dated to the neolithic and Bronze Age periods and most were broken or burnt which was taken by the finder to suggest that the flints represented the sites of short-stay camp sites spread over a wide area.

R.i Forest of Dean Survey exhibition

Field survey

Survey

One of our field surveys was near Welshbury Hillfort, a settlement dating back around 3000 years. Our survey covered the eastern slopes of the hill, where we discovered the site of a holloway, some terracing and 42 charcoal burning platforms.

Charcoal burning

The art of charcoal burning dates from the prehistoric period until recent times.

The charcoal burning platforms are areas of levelled ground, which have been cleared and flattened so that wood can be piled up, lit and made into charcoal under controlled conditions.

rom Welshbury Hillfort.

The Survey Tear

Excavation

The survey team recently excavated a charcoal burning platform on the slopes of Welshbury Wood. As very few of these have been excavated, little is known about the state of their preservation. The excavation was a very rare opportunity to gather important dating and environmental evidence.

Managing sites

Managing sites in the Forest

Much land in the Forest is managed by Forest Enterprise. Our new information about archaeological sites in the Forest is used to provide advice about protecting sites. At Welshbury Hillfort, we suggested the felling of timber by hand, and extraction of the timber by horse, rather than using heavy machinery. This helped prevent damage to one of the Forest's most important prehistoric sites.

Environmental samples

These will help us to find out how old the charcoal platform is. It could also tell us what type of wood was being used.
